Health Promotion Practice opens in Suffolk offering Natural Healing Options

Organic Ergonomics, a natural reflexology health and wellness company has established its practice at 1712 Wilroy Road. On Thursday, September 9, 2010 at 6:00 p.m., join Mayor Linda T. Johnson and owners Johnnie A. and Korrie J. Mapp for a ribbon cutting ceremony to celebrate the opening of this new location. The event is free and open to the public.

“The mission of Organic Ergonomics is to be in harmony with the environment as we deliver health and wellness services that promote unity between our clients and their environment”, said co-owner Johnnie Mapp.

To promote this goal and to preserve the surrounding natural resources, Organic Ergonomics was able to repurpose the property’s existing structures rather than demolish them to create a welcoming and serene environment. They were also committed to incorporating the plant species native to its property’s marsh setting within their overall landscape design. Organic Ergonomics strives to provide natural health and wellness services which enable their clients to harmoniously interact with the elements found in work spaces and at home. Additionally, the company provides ergonomics services which promote healthy work spaces.

“Health, vitality and well-being are such important aspects of our daily lives, both at home and in the work environment” said Mayor Linda T. Johnson. “Organic Ergonomics will be a welcomed addition to our community to provide our citizens with a more natural and holistic approach to wellness.”

Hours of operation are Monday – Saturday by appointment only. For further information contact Johnnie Mapp at 757.538.0209.
